LES BOLSTAD GOLF COURSE SALE

The City of Falcon Heights has been notified that the University of Minnesota Board of Regents will vote on the authorization to dispose of the Les Bolstad Golf Course as surplus property. As part of its surplus property policy, the University must first offer the land to the city, county, and state where it's located before listing it on the open market.

The University has asked Falcon Heights to indicate whether the City is interested in purchasing the property. Appraisals are still pending, but based on comparable land sales in the region, the property could be valued well above the city's final capacity and its legal debt limit. Additionally, the City has not identified the purchase as a goal in its 2025 budget or planning document. As a result, the City Council formally declined the offer at its July 9th meeting.

It is important to note that the City's subdivision ordinance requires 10% of the land in a development to be dedicated to parkland and open space. The City has maintained this plan in our Larpenteur & Snelling Corridor study, to maximize open space throughout the development to provide space for current and future residents to enjoy. Additionally, the City Council's declaration of no intent to pursue the purchase of the golf course property does not remove the City's ability to consider purchasing portions of the property in the future.

More information can be found here.

RESIDENT TREE MAPPING PROJECT

One of the focus points of the Falcon Heights Climate Action Plan is the city's tree cover. The city wants to celebrate the diversity of trees planted throughout the city and give a platform for neighbors to share about their trees.

The city has developed an online map where you can upload your own backyard trees using a convenient survey and view other trees in your neighborhood. The survey asks you to share a few details about the tree, including its species if you happen to know it, and any memories or stories you have about the tree. The survey collects the location of the tree or allows you to pinpoint the location on a map (if not using a location-enabled device). You can also upload a photo of the tree!

Please fill it out to join the Falcon Heights Resident tree map! Your name and information will not be shared, only your beautiful trees!

The Tree Survey is available now!

NATURE NEWSFLASH

FALCON HEIGHTS LAWN AND GARDEN TOURS

The City will be hosting its inaugural Lawn and Garden Tours this Saturday, July 19th, from 9am to 12pm. This event coincides with the Lawns to Legumes Garden Tour Day (check out their website to see other native gardens in the area, including one on Folwell Ave in Falcon Heights!) Some of Falcon Heights' most dedicated gardeners will be available at their homes to give you a tour of their garden and share their experiences.

We hear a lot about different pollinator-friendly, environmentally friendly, and native plant gardens. Growing food plants, flowering plants, and decorative landscaping are all wonderful ways to use your yard, and here is a brief overview of different garden styles:

- Native plant gardens provide habitat and food sources for insects, birds, and small mammals and are often considered easier and less expensive to grow because the plants are already adapted to the local weather and seasons. Native plants are considered a way to improve the ecological conditions of your area and reduce your garden's use of resources like water and fertilizer. Movements like the Homegrown National Park promote planting native species to restore biodiversity.
- Rain gardens are built in low-lying areas to allow rainwater from hard, impermeable surfaces like sidewalks, driveways, and roads to enter the soil instead of creating flooding or picking up pollutants and entering the waterways. A rain garden allows the rain to be directed straight into the soil, where it is absorbed by water-tolerant plants.
- Pollinator gardens/Bee lawns are specifically aimed at providing food and habitat for pollinators (mostly beneficial insects). Pollinator gardens are taller plantings of species preferred by bees, butterflies, beetles, ants, flies, and birds. They can also include nesting habitat for bees. Bee lawns specifically add floral resources (food) for pollinators to your lawn by introducing small flowering plants like self-heal, clover, and creeping thyme amongst your turfgrasses.
- Shade gardens allow you to grow shade tolerant plants in areas other plants might not thrive. This is important especially as we seek to build up our tree canopy to sequester carbon and mitigate heat.
- Cottage gardens are a charming garden style that originally came from England. They are characterized by lush, dense plant growth, a diversity of plants, and an informal landscaping style. Many cottage gardens have an abundance of different native and ornamental plants, with shrubs, fruit trees, or hedges adding additional visual interest and edible plants.

MAKE SURE YOUR HOUSE IS LEAD SAFE

Lead is a toxic metal that is harmful to humans, especially children under 6 and pregnant or breastfeeding adults. The most common source of lead exposure is paint and dust on windows in homes built before 1978. Any amount of lead exposure is dangerous. If you or someone in your household may have been exposed to lead, contact your healthcare provider.

Lead removal grant:
Ramsey County provides grant funding to reduce lead poisoning in children.

How it works:

- An environmental health specialist tests for sources of lead in your home.
- Windows that test positive for lead-based paint are replaced.
- Other lead hazards found in the home are addressed.
- Grant funds cover 80% of the project cost, homeowner is responsible for remaining 20%.
